Denver, Nov. 25.—Once more has the west furnished a type of beauty for the east to rave over. The latest model which Mr. Charles Dana Gibson has selected for the pen and ink sketches which delight society is a tall, statuesque young lady who halls from far west of the Missouri river.

The credit of the discovery is due chiefly to Mr. Thors, the well known photographer. The young lady's name is Miss Jobyna Howland. She is a native of Denver, Col., and is of good family in the western city. In person she is extremely tall, with fine carriage and well poised classic head. She has a sweet, intellectual face and a wealth of golden hair. When she left her Colorado home it was to try her fortune on the stage. She had done some amateur work and believed that her future lay before her. Merely force of circumstances caused her to change her mind. She first played in San Francisco last year, on the last occasion but one of a visit from the Milk White Flag company. She had but a minor part in that play. She next went to San Francisco at the time Clay Clement was amusing audiences at the Columbia with his New Dominion in June last. When Clement left the Columbia he went on a four, and Miss Howland went with him. Thors photographed her in various poses. The photographer was the first to see the exquisite grace of the girl, and he produced some excellent pletures. They attracted the notice of Ar-

ment on Her Husband's Part

Seattle, Wn., Nov. 25.—Con Van Alstine, who came from the Klondike last summer with a great chest of gold, and who lost his wife in New York, but recovered her after a chase to England, is the defendant now in a sensational divorce sult filed here.

Mrs. Van Alstine left her husband yesterday afternoon, claiming that her life was in danger. Divorce papers were immediately drawn and filed. It is claimed that Van Alstine has beaten and abused his wife, that he calls her vile names and says she is untrue. Judge McDonald sent an officer after the clothes and cited Van Alstine to appear next Monday.

The feature of the case will be the first answer of Mrs. Van Alstine to the New York story of disappearing with her husband's money, estimated between $37,000 and $46,000. She will contend that her husband forced her to flee by cruel treatment. At the Hoffman House, she says, he threw her to the floor, stripped her of her jewels and $12,000 in cash,

MAIDS AND COACHMEN

Ice Cream and Beer Served in the Stalls.

New York, Nov. 25.—Mr. Robert McDonald Invited his friends last night to celebrate Jefferson M. Levy's election to congress. Mr. McDonald happens to be Mitchell A. Levy's coachman and Mitchell A. Levy happens to be Jefferson Levy's brother. Mr. McDonald received his guests in the Vanuerbilt stable, No. 126 East Thirty-second street, which was beautifully decorated for the Joyous occasion. The guests, who numbered 300, were The guests, who numbered 300, were young women to whom many fashionable women owe their comfort, and men who daily have in their hands the lives of the richest men in the city; ladies' maids and gentlemen's gentlemen, coachmen, foot-

The big giable doors were locked and

The big s'able doors were locked and the well-mannered and well-dressed guests entered by the side door. The carriages had been removed from the coach room, over whose spacious floor, clean as a whistle, a little sand was sprinkled. The big room was prettly adorned with buntling, evergreens and paims, and from the chandelier, which was hung for the occasion, stretched long streamers of bunting.

Over the door between the coach room and the stalls was a large portriat of Jefferson M. Levy and the word "Welcome" in flowers. Along the walls of the coach room were arranged chairs for the ladies—chairs which are often vulgarly described as "kitchen chairs," but which were not so called last night.

There are nine stalls in the stable. In five were Mr. Levy's horses, which thanks to McDonald's loving labor, wore very shiny coats in honor of the night. Two of the other stalls—and all of them were as sweet and clean as could be—were used as hat and cleak rooms.

In a third stall loe cream was constantly served for the rosy-cheeked young women who could tell secrets about other women's complexions. In the fourth stall a keg of beer was on tap for the stalwart and good-looking men who drive millionaires, and who are the only men who can drive them.

Not a man there last night had a mustache, and not one wore a dress suit.—only butlers and walters wear dress suits. Their clothes fitted them, and all showed preference for strongly marked necktles caught by pins shaped like horseshoes, coaching horns and stirrups. The coachmen and footmen were introduced to the grils they did not know thus:

"This is Mr. Cornellus Vanderbill's man, Charles Whittinker." or, "This is Judge Hillton's man Edward, Moloney," or "This is Mr. Brayton Ives" man, Thomas Dwyer."

Chicago Begin Action.

St. Louis, Nov. 25.—Gerritt H. Ten prock, a prominent attorney of this city, late yesterday afternoon filed suit in the district court ngainst John W. Gates of Chicago and Eibert H. Gary for $1.85,000 damages. Attorney Ten Broeck also represents his associates, D. R. Wolfe George Cook, B. S. Cook, J. G. Ladd and T. F. Parks of St. Louis.

In the petition it is set forth that all the parties named had organized a company to buy manufactories of wire rod, barb wire and wire nalls and deposit the profits of their operation with J. P. Morgan & Co. of New York, who would divide the profits equally between the plaintiffs and defendants.

The petition states that when the organization was about completed the derendants formed a company of their own and carried out the original scheme, shutting out the plaintiffs, who now sue for alleged damages.

COMING DRAMATIC EVENTS

"The Girl I Left Behind Me," from the "The Girl I Left Behind Me," from the pen of David Behasto, is the attraction at the Crawford theater tonight. It is a drama of life on the frontier, but aside from the fact that the background is rough, it is described as in every respect a pollished piece. That is to say, its dialogue is terse and direct, its actions rapid and culminative, and its climaxes stronger act by act. The American Indian is a picturesque character. This has never yet been denied, but the dramatist has never before this play was written, seen fit to illuminate him to the full glare of the footlights. The uprising of the Indians in the far west and the besieging of a stockade furnish the sombre side of the play. The lighter side rests on the love-making of several couples, all of whom are the young people of the garrison.

At the Crawford theater tomorrow after-At the Crawford theater tomorrow after-moon a matinee performance of "Human Hearis" will be given. Children will be admitted to any part of the house for 15 cents, and the prices for adults will be 25, 35 and 55 cents. ment and presented by a better company.

The coming of the clever comedian, Willie Coilier, in H. A. Du Souchet's successful farce, "The Man From Mexico," at the Crawford theater Monday evening, is a theatrical event of importance. Mn. Coilier is an artist to the tips of his fingers, with a fund of humor that bubbles forth without apparent effort on his part, and that has plenty of room in "The Man From Mexico." During the original run of this farce at Hoyt's theater. New York, where it remained for weeks, the audience tested the capacity of the theater nightly. The matiness were crowded, and "The Man From Mexico" was easily classed among the farces that will be enduringly popular with the fair sex. It is claimed that, more than anything seen on the New York stage in years, it has proved that the playwright need not descend to the gutter for his material, that

SUBJECT OF TAXES.

State Auditor Cole May Be Instrumental in Some New Legislation.

The subject of assessment and taxation is likely to receive special attention at the coming session of the legislature and any man who pays taxes in Kansas realizes fully the demand and the necessity for reforms along this line.

State Auditor George E. Cole is likely to become the special champion of measures calculated to correct errors in this direction and his ideas will be the nucleus around which the general bill will be framed. The last legislature attempted to correct some of the existing evils, but the measure which was proposed carried the statesmen into the mire and they emerged without having accomplished anything further than a discussion of the subject along partisan lines.

Mr. Cole is a county cierk of years of experience and is a man who has a thorough knowledge of this class of work. He has made it a special study and is regarded by business men and politicians alike as competent and capable of outlining a bill which will be generally beneficial.

happens when the taxes have not been paid for more than a year, and is offered out the first Tuesday in September after the taxes have been declared delinquent and the county is compelled to take the property, the law should be so amended as to entitle the county to a credit from the state for the state's proportion of the uncollected taxes. And, when the property is redeemed, the state should have credit for its proportion of the redemption and the assignment as shown in the distribution in the county redemption fund. This would cause each county to settle with the state once each year and would, in my opinion, remove the cause for many controversies and disputed points in this matter.

"The law now in force regulates the matter of taxes and assessments, and the various counties are only getting credit for the state's proportion of delinquent taxes where the tax warrants are returned by the sheriff and marked 'no property found,' and also where there are erroneous and double assessments. Credits are also given where, after three years have elapsed from the date of the sale, the county commissioners are allowed to compromise the delinquent taxes and assign property for less than the amount at which it sold. Here is another case in the loss on account of the compromise."
